PROGRAM STRUCTURE

NATIONAL INITIAL INTENSIVE

The program starts in November 2022 with a residential training program. It's designed to prepare you with the foundations for entering the classroom: you'll complete a portion of your Master's and connect with peers from within your cohort and beyond.

TEACHING & LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

Once you begin teaching in 2023, you'll develop your teaching and leadership skills throughout the program through first-hand teaching experience, continuing your Master's and one-on-one coaching and mentoring.

EARNING YOUR MASTER OF TEACHING

Delivered in partnership with ACU and embedded within the program, Associates will complete a nationally accredited and internationally recognised Master of Teaching (Secondary) (Leading Learning) in 2024.

The Leadership Development Program is delivered as part of the High Achieving Teachers Program with the support of the Australian Government Department of Education, Skills and Employment.

THE WHY

Compared to other wealthy nations, Australia's education system is one of the most unequal and inequitable.

6x

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students are on average six times more likely to be below the national minimum standards for literacy and numeracy.

< 1/2

Students from rural or remote communities are less than half as likely to go to university – and are more likely to drop out if they do.

3x

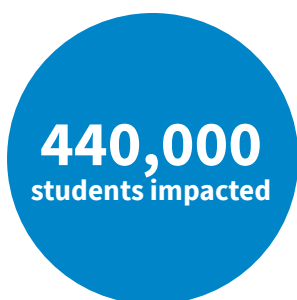

COVID-19 has only exacerbated these problems, with estimates showing that the achievement gap has tripled in 2020 for students who are experiencing disadvantage.

Statistics like these show that circumstances that are out of a student's control—the postcode they're born in, their parents' own education level, their cultural background—often dictate the education they are able to access.

Without intervention, the gap in educational outcomes grows over time and is carried on to the next generation—creating a cycle of disadvantage. The Teach For Australia Leadership Development Program gives you the skills needed to make a real impact as a teacher and leader in Australia's education system.

OUR IMPACT

Since 2009, we've recruited, developed, supported and empowered great teachers in hundreds of schools in communities experiencing disadvantage.
